2013 Season Outlook: In 2012 the Eagles made the post season for the first time in club history. Not only did the team make the post season but established themselves as a power in the northwest by reaching the regional championship were they fell to the best team in the NCBA, Utah State. 2013 brings a new year and outlook for the Eags who only lose one starter from last years team. This year the sights are set on making the World series and anything else would be a dissapointment. Along with 8 returning starters and a top 30 ranking at the end of 2012 the Eagles have added some tremendous talent to the roster over the offseason. We welcome 6 college tranfer students who have played ball at a high level and are eagles to help take this years team to greater places. By adding depth on the mound and some power and grit to the lineup the Eags will be a tough matchup in 2013

2013 Season Outlook: With some key veteran leadership and some rookies stepping up and playing big roles our team is on the path to turning our season from last year around. Speed has taken over the outfield and batting order, and holes in our middle infield have been filled. Pitching has also improved by adding depth in our bullpen and starters that proved this fall that they will be able to take our team deep into a ball game.
