

Name: Andrew Bellucco

Affiliation with NCBA:

Clemson University Club Baseball

Years involved with NCBA and in what capacity:

First year player

Baseball Experience:

14 years of baseball in some capacity, 4 years of high school ball and several years on various travel teams.

Why would you make a good NCBA Division I Rules Committee Representative?

With baseball being ingrained in my family, I have been around the game for as long as I can remember. I've played for nearly all my life, and have watched and studied countless games of all levels. My father is the president of our local Little League Baseball program, and I have helped him out through the years with umpiring, groundskeeping, coaching and other odds and ends jobs around the ballparks. Through this, I have learned the ins and outs of baseball. I've grown to understand the importance of clear cut, fair rules that help the game evolve. Each minor detail is immensely important, and my father and many coaches have helped me understand as much as possible about the game. On top of that, my father, brother and I are die-hard Pittsburgh Pirates fans. We will usually watch about 100 of their regular season games on TV and make 2 or 3 road trips to the stadium each year. We constantly talk about each aspect of the game and the rule changes that have gone into effect over the years. I have a strong passion for baseball, and take pride in my knowledge of the game, from Little League to the MLB. It would be a thrill to use my passion to help the NCBA grow.

Additional Comments:

On top of my own knowledge of the game, I am aware that my job would also be to listen to the ideas and input of others, and clearly present this information to the Rules Committee. I consider myself an extremely outgoing guy who always loves hearing the input of others, and have no problem speaking in front of an audience.