Rawlings Renews Equipment Contract with CollClubSports

Pittsburgh, PA - CollClubSports is excited to announce that they have renewed their contract with Rawlings Sporting Goods, extending their designation as "The Official Protective Equipment Sponsor of CollClubSports" through the 2022 season!

As a long time partner, CollClubSports is thrilled to inform teams that in addition to those in DI, DII teams in the NCBA will now be able to take advantage of complementary equipment each year through their membership (1 set of catchers gear OR 8 batting helmets)! In addition, Rawlings will retain their sponsorship of the DI and DII All Americans along with the naming rights for the NCSA & NCBA Free Agent Teams at the Spring Training Showcase.

"We're extremely excited to have Rawlings Sporting Goods back on board and service our teams with their equipment needs, as this renewal will continue the decade long relationship we've already had together," said CollClubSports Marketing Manager, Eric Curitore. "Our teams will have the opportunity to take advantage of all their high quality equipment needs at exclusive pricing. With Rawlings having a large variety of products to offer, our club teams should be very excited!"

Adam Henke, Team Sales Representative at Rawlings Sporting Goods, echoes Mr. Curitore's excitement: "Rawlings is excited to have extended this deal with CollClubSports. The NCBA and NCSA are growing entities within the realm of collegiate sports and we are proud to be a part of that. Having played in the NCBA before, this is even more special to me personally and I'm looking forward to a continued partnership moving forward."

Participating teams will be sent a survey link by the NCBA for them to choose which option they would like this summer.
